APPLICATION OF SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA EDISON COMPANY (U 338-E) FOR RECOVERY OF ALISO CANYON UTILITY OWNED ENERGY STORAGE COSTS

I.

INTRODUCTION

Pursuant to Rules 1 and 2 of the California Public Utilities Commission’s (“Commission” or “CPUC”) Rules of Practice and Procedure, Southern California Edison Company (“SCE”) respectfully files this Application and requests that the Commission authorize SCE to recover costs associated with four SCE-owned energy storage systems procured to alleviate reliability concerns arising out of the moratorium on gas injections into the Aliso Canyon Storage Facility. SCE’s filing consists of the Application and Testimony in support of the Application (Exhibit SCE-01). The supporting Testimony also describes SCE’s proposed ratemaking treatment.

II.

EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

In this Application, SCE seeks approval from the Commission to recover the costs associated with the solicitation, site assessment, and construction of four SCE-owned energy storage projects (“UOS Projects”). SCE procured two projects from Tesla Motors, Inc. (“Tesla”) through its Aliso Canyon Energy Storage (“ACES”) Request for Proposals (“RFP”). The other two projects are the product of bilateral negotiations with General Electric-Current (“GE”). All four UOS Projects became operational on December 30, 2016 to help alleviate electric system reliability concerns caused by the Aliso Canyon emergency.

Following the Aliso Canyon natural gas storage facility leak in the third quarter of 2015, on January 6, 2016, Governor Jerry Brown issued an emergency proclamation directing that the “[CPUC] and the California Energy Commission, in coordination with the California Independent System Operator, shall take all actions necessary to ensure the continued reliability of natural gas and electricity supplies in the coming months during the moratorium on gas injections into the Aliso Canyon Storage Facility.”

In response, the CPUC issued Resolution E-4791 (the “Resolution”). The Resolution, among other things, deemed it reasonable for SCE to pursue proposals for turnkey, “design, build and transfer,” in-front-of-the-meter (“IFOM”) energy storage projects at the utility’s substations or on utility-owned or operated sites south of Path 26.¹ The Resolution further authorized SCE to seek approval of, and obtain cost recovery treatment, Energy Storage credit, and LCR credit for any contracts resulting from the ACES Solicitation through a Tier 3 Advice Letter. Additionally, because any procurement to alleviate reliability risks associated with the partial shutdown of Aliso Canyon will benefit all customers connected to the grid, the CPUC found that all customers must bear the costs of the contracts resulting from the ACES Solicitation. The Resolution required SCE to submit an application for reasonableness review of utility owned storage projects within 90 days after the operational start date of such projects.

A day after the Resolution was issued, SCE launched its ACES Solicitation to expeditiously bring energy storage resources online, which consisted of a Request for Offers (“ACES RFO”) and a concurrent, separately administered ACES RFP for “Design, Build, and Transfer” utility-owned energy storage facilities to meet the Aliso Canyon reliability needs. The results of the RFP yielded the two Tesla battery systems (the “Tesla Projects”) for which SCE seeks cost recovery in this Application.²

Shortly before the Resolution was issued, GE approached SCE with a proposal to develop and perform Enhanced Gas Turbine (“EGT” or “Peaker Enhancement”) upgrades on one or more SCE Peaker Generating Stations, which included an integrated energy storage feature. In response to the Resolution, SCE negotiated contract terms with GE to perform enhancements on two IFOM storage SCE peakers (the “GE Projects”).

Consistent with the Resolution, the Tesla Projects (Mira Loma Battery Energy Storage System A & B) are sited adjacent to SCE’s Mira Loma substation in Ontario, California (south of Path 26), the battery storage is located IFOM, the projects are sited at locations that help alleviate electric reliability concerns, and energy storage systems will likely provide incremental RA. In accordance to the Resolution, the GE Projects are located south of Path 26 as they are integrated into SCE’s Peaker Generating Stations in Norwalk, California (Center Peaker) and Rancho Cucamonga, California (Grapeland Peaker), the battery storage is located IFOM, and the projects are sited at locations that help alleviate electric reliability concerns and will provide incremental RA to the two existing peakers. In compliance with the Resolution, which required projects to be in service by December 31, 2016, the Mira Loma, Center Peaker, and Grapeland Peaker projects became operational on December 30, 2016.³

This Application and its supporting Testimony demonstrate that:

- SCE contracted for cost competitive “build and transfer” energy storage resources consistent with the Resolution;

² Consistent with the direction provided in the Resolution, SCE sought approval of its ACES RFO contracts through Tier 3 Advice Letters, filed on August 15, 2016. The Commission approved these contracts on September 15, 2016. See Resolution E-4808.

³ All four projects were able to perform their core function of charge and discharge in support of grid operation, as dispatched on December 30, 2016, but these initial grid operations had certain limitations because battery conditioning, operational testing, and work to fully integrate the Peaker batteries into the Peaker control system was still underway.

- The UOS Projects are consistent with the parameters of the Resolution for energy storage resources to mitigate an outage risk associated with the partial shutdown of the Aliso Canyon storage facility;
- The UOS Projects are consistent with the Energy Storage Procurement Framework adopted in Decision (D.) 13-10-040;
- The forecast total cost of capital expenditures for construction, and the $4.5 million in forecast O&M expense for the Tesla Projects (from project initiation through 2020) are reasonable;
- The forecast total cost of capital expenditures for construction, and $0.9 in forecast O&M expense for the GE Projects (from project initiation through 2020) are reasonable;
- SCE's expenses of $1.1 million to conduct the ACES RFP (including costs associated with unsuccessful sites) are reasonable;
- SCE should be authorized to establish the ACES Balancing Account ("ACESBA") to record Tesla and GE Project development O&M expenses and capital-related revenue requirements (including an initial entry for the transfer of SCE-owned ACES-related recorded activity in the Aliso Canyon Catastrophic Event Memorandum Account) until remaining cost recovery can be transitioned to SCE's base rates beginning in SCE's 2021 General Rate Case (GRC);
- SCE should be authorized to recover costs using the Cost Allocation Mechanism ("CAM") because the storage projects were procured to ensure system reliability, and benefit all customers; and
- The Tesla Projects totaling 20 MW and the GE Projects totaling 20 MW, should count towards satisfying the outstanding portion of SCE's energy storage targets, as authorized by the Resolution and consistent with D.13-10-040, and to the extent a need is identified, should qualify for LCR credits pursuant to D.13-02-015 and D.14-03-004.

IV.

SUMMARY OF SCE'S COST RECOVERY, REVENUE ALLOCATION AND RATEMAKING

A. CAM Net Revenue Calculations

The UOS Projects were built in accordance with the Resolution's requirements to meet reliability needs for the benefit of all customers in SCE's distribution service area. The Resolution establishes a reliability-based need for IFOM energy storage, authorizes SCE to pursue proposals for turnkey project development of "build and transfer" projects located at the utility's substations or on utility-owned or operated sites, and directs SCE to recover those costs from all benefitting (i.e., delivery) customers through the CAM. Consistent with the Commission's determination that these projects are CAM-eligible, SCE proposes to recover their associated costs using CAM.

Through CAM, SCE allocates the "net costs" of the capacity through a "wires" charge,⁴ determined as a net of the total cost of the contract minus the energy revenues associated with dispatch of the resource. In its supporting testimony, SCE explains how the net "revenues associated with the dispatch of the resource" are to be calculated. In summary:

- 1) For the Tesla Projects, SCE will apply the IFOM CAM adopted in the LCR Decision (D.15-11-041), such that the costs resulting from charging each battery in the lowest-priced hours of a 24-hour period are netted against the revenues resulting from discharging that battery during the highest-priced hours in the same 24-hour period to determine the net revenue received from the resource. This proxy for the net revenue is then credited back to the contract cost to calculate the net capacity cost of the resource to be recovered through SCE's New System Generation Charge (NSGC) from all delivery service customers.

⁴ The net costs of all CAM-eligible resources are recovered from SCE's delivery service customers through the New System Generation Charge (NSGC).

- 2) For the GE Projects, SCE will use actual CAISO revenues instead of proxy revenues through a true-up process, because the existing CAM does not explicitly include the value of spin service, which will generate material benefits from the GE Projects. Forecasted net costs used for setting prospective rates will be the same as those used in SCE's ERRA forecast, and the true-up, which will be calculated using actual costs and market revenues, will result in the actual net costs being allocated to all benefitting customers and recovered through SCE's NSGC.

B. Aliso Canyon CEMA

Consistent with its tariffs,⁵ on May 10, 2016 SCE sent a letter to the CPUC Executive Director informing him that SCE activated its Catastrophic Event Memorandum Account (CEMA) to record and track its costs incurred to mitigate electric reliability issues that could occur in summer and winter months stemming from natural gas curtailments caused by the moratorium on injections into the Aliso Canyon Natural Gas Storage Facility, which includes the costs incurred for the UOS Projects. SCE excluded all costs of the UOS Projects from its 2017 ERRA Forecast (adopted in D.16-12-054). In 2016, SCE recorded $878,993 of pre-deployment O&M project non-labor costs in the Aliso Canyon CEMA, as discussed in Chapter IX of Exhibit SCE-01. Commencing January 1, 2017, and up until a decision is issued in this Application, SCE will continue to record the actual O&M expenses and capital-related revenue requirements for the UOS Projects in the Aliso Canyon CEMA.

C. Cost Recovery

Effective upon a decision in this Application, SCE proposes to establish a new balancing account – the Aliso Canyon Energy Storage Balancing Account (ACESBA) – to record the actual Tesla Projects and GE Projects revenue requirements. Each month, SCE will record the incremental O&M expenses, payroll taxes and capital revenue requirements (i.e., depreciation, return on rate base, property taxes and incomes taxes) in the ACESBA associated with the activities as approved by the Commission for the UOS Projects. The ACESBA will separately account for and record the revenue requirements for the Tesla Projects and the GE Projects.

Each month, SCE will record Tesla and GE Project entries into the ACESBA as follows:

- a. An initial transfer of the SCE-owned ACES-related recorded activity in the Aliso Canyon CEMA (debit);
- b. Actual incremental O&M costs (debit), calculated on recorded expenses;
- c. Applicable labor loadings (debit) based on GRC authorized rates;⁶ and
- d. Capital-related revenue requirements (debit), calculated on actual rate base amounts and using the most recent adopted return on rate base (currently set at 7.90% pursuant to D.12-12-034).

These costs, which represent the total cost of the Tesla Projects and GE Projects, will be transferred from the ACESBA to the NSGBA. Additionally, proxy net revenues for the Tesla Projects, and actual CAISO revenues for the GE Projects, will be recorded in the NSGBA to complete the net cost calculation described in Chapter X.B of Exhibit SCE-01.

SCE proposes to include in its New System Generation rates a forecast annual revenue requirement effective January 1 of each year, up until the UOS Projects' costs are included in SCE's 2021 test year GRC. Forecast revenue requirements are set forth in Chapter X.F of Exhibit SCE-01. To ensure customers only pay the actual Tesla and GE Projects revenue requirements, SCE proposes to transfer the December 31 balance recorded in the ACESBA to the NSGBA at year-end. Using this approach, any difference between the forecast Tesla Projects and GE Projects revenue requirements included in rate levels and the actual recorded Tesla Projects and GE Projects revenue requirements will be trued-up in the operation of the NSGBA.

⁶ However, to the extent a particular labor loading is currently accounted for in another balancing account (e.g., Pensions, Post-Employment Benefits Other than Pensions ("PBOPs")), SCE will not apply these labor loadings on the Tesla and GE project incurred labor costs.

This proposed ratemaking provides that no more and no less than the reasonable revenue requirements associated with the Tesla and GE Project activities are ultimately collected from customers. Any over-collection recorded in the NSGBA at the end of each year will be refunded to customers in the subsequent year. Similarly, any under-collection recorded in the NSGBA at the end of each year will be recovered from customers in the subsequent year.

This Application seeks the Commission's review and determination that the costs associated with the UOS Projects are reasonable and can be recovered in rates as proposed herein, and therefore no after-the-fact reasonableness review should be required, as discussed in Chapter X.E of Exhibit SCE-01.

D. Recovery of Costs of Unsuccessful Sites

In the context of establishing rules for utility ownership of generation resources and their participation in RFOs, the Commission has articulated a general prohibition on the recovery of any bid development costs associated with losing bids, in the event such costs are incurred.⁷ Given the extraordinary circumstances that arose from the partial shutdown of the Aliso Canyon Natural Gas Storage Facility, and the unique reliability need identified by Resolution E-4791, SCE seeks recovery of all costs incurred in the development of viable sites for locating the UOS Projects, including those associated with unsuccessful sites, as discussed in Chapter X.G of Exhibit SCE-01. In 2016, SCE incurred $212k in labor costs associated with unsuccessful sites. These labor costs are not incremental and are currently recovered in the GRC. In 2016, SCE also incurred $339k in unsuccessful site non-labor costs. These costs are incremental to the GRC and are recorded in the Aliso Canyon CEMA. Similar to the successful site non-labor costs, SCE proposes to transfer the $339k in unsuccessful site costs from the Aliso Canyon CEMA to the ACESBA for cost recovery upon a decision approving SCE's proposed ratemaking in this Application.

⁷ See D.07-12-052, p. 207.

V.

- (xiv) Granting such other relief as the Commission finds to be just and reasonable.

VI.

SAFETY

Battery-based energy storage systems are prone to overcharging and overdischarging, making them susceptible to “thermal runaway,” a potential safety risk arising from rapid, uncontrolled increase in the temperature that cannot be halted by stopping or disconnecting the system. Thermal runaways can harm equipment connecting the device to the grid. This safety risk is mitigated by implementing voltage safety monitoring and controls, as well as fault detection mechanisms at both the battery cell level and system level. SCE implemented those safety measures as part of its utility storage deployments.

To interconnect, all energy storage systems (utility-owned and third party) must adhere to Rule 21 or the Wholesale Distribution Access Tariff (“WDAT”). As mentioned in SCE's Distribution Resources Plan,⁸ the majority of safety standards and certifications⁹ have been incorporated into Rule 21 and WDAT. Importantly, IEEE 1547, which is a suite of standards for distributed resources,¹⁰ has been harmonized with Rule 21 and incorporated into WDAT.

⁸ SCE Distribution Resources Plan. See A.15-07-002, Application of Southern California Edison Company for Approval of its Distribution Resources Plan, July 1, 2015, Attachment at 156.

⁹ Institute of Electrical and Electronics Engineers (“IEEE”), Underwriters Laboratories, and National Electric Code (“NEC”).

¹⁰ Defines the minimal functional technical requirements for performance, operation, testing, safety and maintenance of all types of DERs.

Whether interconnecting under Rule 21 or WDAT, both tariffs provide SCE with the ability to review energy storage equipment prior to installation, during pre and post commercial operation testing. Further, both Rule 21 and WDAT require technical review by SCE engineers and an Electrical Inspection Release (“EIR”) from the local authority verifying that the work on the customer’s side of the meter meets requirements of the National Electric Code (“NEC”) and all local codes and ordinances.

Per the Commission’s Decision¹¹ on Track 1 of the energy storage proceeding, SCE participated in a working group on energy storage safety inspections. The working group created an energy storage safety inspection checklist. Based on expertise from the IOUs, codes and standards development organizations, energy storage developers, and other interested users, the checklist is for use by Commission, Safety and Enforcement Division (“SED”) inspectors when inspecting utility substations.
